IMPA ACT is an initiative of the International Marine Purchasing Association that encourages ship-owners, ship-operators and ship suppliers to demonstrate a tangible commitment to responsible business conduct.

At the core of the initiative is the IMPA ACT Code of Conduct for Business Relationships, a set of social, environmental and economic principles that are based on internationally-endorsed UN minimum expectations for businesses and represent current best practice. Companies participating in the IMPA ACT initiative commit to working towards alignment with the IMPA ACT Code of Conduct for Business Relationships over time, both internally and within their upstream and downstream supply chain.

In becoming a member of the IMPA ACT initiative, our company:

1. Commits to living up to the requirements of the IMPA ACT Code of Conduct for Business Relationships internally.

Our management commits to implementing the requirements of the IMPA ACT Code of Conduct for Business Relationships internally and to working towards the same environmental, social and anti-corruption standards that we expect from our business relationships.

2. Commits to working with responsible supply chain management.

Our management commits to extending the expectations listed in the IMPA ACT Code of Conduct for Business Relationships to all our business relationships in time and ensuring they also act responsibly.
